

MEDIATION: MORE VALUE FOR THE COST

The hourly fees associated with mediation are typically shared by those involved. Mediation sessions are scheduled in two-hour blocks.

Mediation saves expense and time compared to litigation. In addition, you have an opportunity to resolve your issues in a manner that truly meets your concerns.

Mediation enables the parties to resolve the issues at hand and learn how to avoid the pitfalls next time.

WHAT IS MEDIATION?

Mediation is a unique process that provides the parties an opportunity to fully discuss and craft a solution to their dispute with the assistance of a professionally trained neutral third party.

Mediation allows the parties to determine their own agreement without eliminating their legal rights.

Mediation is a confidential process that can expedite a resolution.

Mediation is less expensive than litigation.

WHEN TO CHOOSE MEDIATION

Disputants are interested in maintaining control of the outcome instead of the court making the decision.

Financial costs of litigation are too high.

There is a preference for a quick resolution.

There is interest in a non-adversarial process.

There is an interest in confidentiality.

All disputants are willing to voluntarily participate in the process.

There is an interest in part, for an on-going relationship for the term of the project completion and possibly beyond.
